2. What our students learn

2.1 Essay Writing Skills

In preparation for the Economics examination, students will be trained to develop important essay writing skills, such as paragraph development, outline planning, dialectical thinking, and analysis of factors. Sample essays are featured in class to demonstrate how these skills are applied in step-by-step ways.

2.2 CSQ Answering Skills

CSQ application involves the understanding of economic data and extracts as well as the interpretation and analysis of information. As such, the revision programmes are oriented towards the use of specific skillsets, like trend analysis, to different question types, based on the mark allocation.

2.3 Diagrammatical Illustration

In the context of O and A Level Economics, students must learn how to draw economic diagrams and interpret them accordingly to answer the questions. During the revision classes, students will attempt to draw various diagrams and receive feedback on ways to improve their illustration and process explanation.

2.4 Topical Re-Teaching and E-learning content teaching

As students may have knowledge gaps and fragmentation of ideas, the topical re-teaching classes held during the revision phase are effective in addressing this setback. Every topical teaching class features a specific chapter, like International Trade, National Income Accounting, and Cost of Production. Our E-learning lessons also stresses on teaching the essential content that is required for examination and expands student necessary skills for examination.

2.5 Class Practice and E-learning

Following the comprehensive coverage of content, students will attempt timed practices to assess their competency. These practices are emphasized extensively in our tuition programmes as many students do not allocate much time on individual practices to eradicate the frictions of knowledge application. We have also developed online practice sessions, covering essay outline practices, essay outline practices and case study practices.
